PRESS RELEASE: 14TH JUNE 2010 – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Employment Department Hits 6 as Sheridans Hires Again

Leading Leisure, Media and Entertainment firm, SHERIDANS, has strengthened its Employment team further with a new employment specialist, taking its number of specialist employment lawyers to six.

Danielle Spiers joins the firm having trained at Druces LLP before she spent two years at niche Employment firm, Partners. Danielle joins Praveen Bhatia and Daniela Cohen as the other significant appointments the Department has made in the last two years.

Danielle advises on a broad range of general HR issues including discipline and grievance, redundancy, discrimination and family rights. She also has specialist experience involving the enforceability of restrictive covenants and has recently been involved in a major piece of fiduciary duty litigation in the High Court.

In relation to Danielle's appointment, Head of Employment, Ray Wann said:

"Danielle is another great addition to the Sheridans Employment Department. Her appointment enhances further our ability to provide clients not only with a high standard of service but also with real strength in depth when handling high value or complex employment issues. As our reputation grows, so too does the number and sophistication of employment instructions the firm receives and the Department is really thriving at the moment. It also demonstrates that the firm's decision to target Employment as a key plank of its future growth plans was a great strategy and we fully expect to strengthen again as we continue to expand our employment offering in the leisure, media and entertainment sectors."
